Highlights of May Board of Managers Meeting

The board of managers meeting was held on May 30, 2020, at 11:00am via Go to Meeting. Highlights of the meeting are:

- ◆ The community vegetable garden is tilled, weeded, and almost full with beautiful plants.
- ◆ The new blower motor is here; but there are a couple of snags being taken care of for performance.
- ◆ The firepit installation is moving along nicely and we should start to see some activity soon.
- ◆ Although the pool is cleaned and ready to open, the Chautauqua County Health Department ordered that the pool and surrounding area must remain closed during the pandemic. The order applies to the gym too.
- ◆ The Chautauqua County Health Department instructed the Association that returning seasonal residents must self-quarantine for a period of two weeks, once arriving to Edgewater Condominium.
- ◆ A reminder to all residents to wipe down all community use areas, such as the laundry room, railings, etc. when finished.
- ◆ The Beautification Committee is seeking active members. Thank you to the residents who prepared and planted geraniums this year.
- ◆ Ballots were mailed on May 30th for the upcoming election on June 14th.
- ◆ Residents received information on how to contact Spectrum to sign up for the service and receive equipment. Those that already have done so are receiving equipment quickly.
- ◆ Trees donated through the Village of Westfield program have been planted.
- ◆ The board approved a proposal from homeowner Darlene Golibersuch to purchase a playset, at her expense, for the Association. This is to replace the playset previously destroyed in the windstorm earlier this year.
- ◆ The next meeting is scheduled for June 14, 2020 at 4:00 PM via GoToMeeting

Here's How to Join the Edgewater Private Facebook Group

Because the group is private, you must be invited to join by a current member and then approved to join by an administrator of the group. This setting ensures the group page's content is hidden and only visible to our members.

There are three ways to join:

1. Current group members can invite you if you are on their Facebook Friends list. Administrators will see all pending invitations.
2. From Facebook, search for Edgewater Condominium Association. Click on Join Group where an administrator will add you.
3. Residents can also be invited by email to join the private group. This method will allow an automated email invite. The email will contain the senders name, the name of the group and a "Join Group" button you can click to accept the invitation to the group. If a recipient is not a Facebook member, he or she is required to sign up for Facebook before he or she can join the group.

We look forward to sharing with you! Please reach out to Kimberly Alonge at 68elvis@gmail.com with any questions.

Messages from Our Residents ...

Ray and Susan Mapston, 1205

As if to verify a principal reason why we traditionally migrate to western New York for the summer months, a front page article in today's newspaper put us on notice.

Temperatures in St. George are expected to hit the triple-digits for the first time in 2020 and unrelenting sunshine is on the way, according to the article. The National weather Service has issued an excessive heat watch for the St. George area on Thursday and Friday. "Dangerous early season heat with daily maximum temperatures of 103 to 106 degrees expected around the St. George area."

Southern Utah is blazing hot because it's elevation and climate are similar to the dry, hot deserts of southern Nevada and parts of Arizona. Fortunately, we are experienced in dealing with the high temperatures so that's really not a problem. To beat the heat and stay cool, we get our outdoor chores done early in the day and avoid outdoor activities in the late afternoon. The comfortable cool lower section of our home with Susan's sewing/quilting center, my office, bedroom, bathroom and clothes washing area makes a big difference during those hot days.

We will be thinking of Edgewater and Westfield but life is also good here in Utah's Dixie.

Messages from Our Residents ...

John and Cathy Rathmell, 301

Not much has changed in Lancaster, PA. Slowly things are opening up and most people are being cautious. Cathy and I have found that we are being more observant on our “nature” walks and have identified over 25 species of birds, including an Eastern Kingbird which was a new one for us. Also we find that we are having more time to think about things... like the real meaning of Memorial Day. We think from now on we’ll wish people to have a “Meaningful Memorial Day”. John went out and played taps on his trombone at 3:00 on Monday. Finally, we are happy that the Chautauqua Institution will be doing a bunch of programming on-line... we were worried that it would be a total shutdown so this is a real positive.

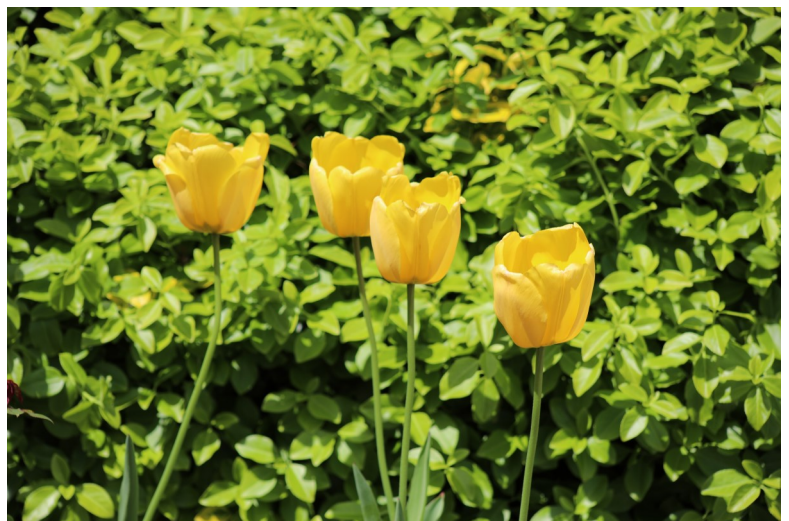

Be safe everyone!

Marilyn and Norm Gollnitz, 1002

As of now we have been “self isolating” for 84 days...with an occasional outing to the bank, drive by visiting with our kids, trips to the grocery store in the dark of night, and visiting with neighbors sitting outside. The weather has been a gift and the sunsets are spectacular. Don’t know whether it’s because we are noticing the sunsets more, but they seem to be more of a gift nowadays. We have been doing little projects with more on the horizon. Gotta keep busy, can only watch so much Netflix!

We are happy to see people returning and sad that a few won’t be here this summer. Hopefully we will have good turn outs for Winey Wednesdays since those will be our “social activities” for the summer and when the fire pit is complete we can have some lovely gatherings after dark. Be happy and well. ☺
